Stewardship Message—Empowered!

“Fully Alive as Missionary Disciples”

Rev 7: 2-4, 9-14 / 1 Jn 3:1-3 / Mt 5: 1-12

Solemnity of All Saints

In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus offers instruction on how his followers should go about the task of evangelizing others. He teaches that they should be meek and merciful peacemakers. They should be humble of heart and prepared for persecution. As the very first disciple, our Blessed Mother demonstrated these qualities. If we study the lives of the saints we honor this weekend, we will see those traits in them as well. What if we study our own lives? Will we find those traits in our own efforts in discipleship? Or does our pride cause us to stumble on our path to holiness? In the Beatitudes, Jesus has given us all the proper way of living — a way that will draw others in. Let us use our lives as Mary and the saints did...to point to Jesus on the cross!

What does FIAT mean?

"Mary as Mother, became the first "disciple" of her Son, the first to whom he seemed to say:

'Follow me'..."

Pope St. John Paul II

"Mary, Virgin and Mother, you who, moved by the Holy Spirit, welcomed the word of life in the depths of your humble faith: as you gave yourself completely to the Eternal one, help us to say our own "yes" to the urgent call, as pressing as ever, to proclaim the good news of Jesus."

~Pope Francis

DOCTRINAL SECTION

At the other end of life's spectrum, men and women find themselves facing the mystery of death. Today, as a result of advances in medicine and in a cultural context frequently closed to the transcendent, the experience of dying is marked by new features. When the prevailing tendency is to value life only to the extent that it brings pleasure and well-being, suffering seems like an unbearable setback, something from which one must be freed at all costs. Death is considered "senseless" if it suddenly interrupts a life still open to a future of new and interesting experiences. But it becomes a "rightful liberation" once life is held to be no longer meaningful because it is filled with pain and inexorably doomed to even greater suffering. Furthermore, when he denies or neglects his fundamental relationship to God, man thinks he is his own rule and measure, with the right to demand that society should guarantee him the ways and means of deciding what to do with his life in full and complete autonomy. It is especially people in the developed countries who act in this way: they feel encouraged to do so also by the constant progress of medicine and its ever more advanced techniques. By using highly sophisticated systems and equipment, science and medical practice today are able not only to attend to cases formerly considered untreatable and to reduce or eliminate pain, but also to sustain and prolong life even in situations of extreme frailty, to resuscitate artificially patients whose basic biological functions have undergone sudden collapse, and to use special procedures to make organs available for transplanting. In this context the temptation grows to have recourse to euthanasia, that is, to take control of death and bring it about before its time, "gently" ending one's own life or the life of others. In reality, what might seem logical and humane, when looked at more closely is seen to be senseless and inhumane. Here we are faced with one of the more alarming symptoms of the "culture of death", which is advancing above all in prosperous societies, marked by an attitude of excessive preoccupation with efficiency and which sees the growing number of elderly and disabled people as intolerable and too burdensome. These people are very often isolated by their families and by society, which are organized almost exclusively on the basis of criteria of productive efficiency, according to which a hopelessly impaired life no longer has any value.

~EV St. John Paul II
